MYSTIC OUIJA BOARD IS LURE TO COLLEGE BOYS

Michigan University Faculty Shows Concern Over the Growth of Mysticism-Students Become Delinquent.

ANN HARBOR, Mich., Feb. 6 (By International News Service)—University of Michigan students are replacing Bibles and prayer books in their rooms with Oulja beards, and the influx of patients afflicted with nervous disorders to the college infirmary is increasing. Likewise the number of students who have become delinquent in their studies has shown a gain.

These conditions are frankly admitted by members of the university faculty and some of them do not hesitate to blame the festive Oulja board for them. They assert that the growth among the students of belief in things mystic is undermining the standards of scholarship and, in some cases, menacing health.

scholarship and, in some cases, menacing health.

"Outja boards are becoming more plentiful in the fraternity and society houses and in the rooms of independent students than are Elbies or prayer books," said one faculty member, "and they are more frequently consulted. Another member of the teaching staff paye students in his class room the following warning:

"If the students will devote the time to study that they now give to the Outja board there will be fewer students placed on the home or on the warned lists at the end of the semester, after the examinations are over. To my mind the lure of the Guija is becoming a serious menace in this country."

Dr. Warren Forsythe, head of the

Dr. Warren Forsythe, head of the university health service, admitted that there had been a great influx of nervous students appearing lately for treatment. Just what had been the cause of this condition the students did not state. None of them was in a serious condition, he admitted, several of them were men.

One nerve specialist stated that he had treated university women for extreme nervousness and that their difficulty seemed to have been caused by ton close association with the Ouia board and too great belief in its wanderings. They had become fascinated by its messages and had come to place so much trust in them that they were turned over to him for treatment. One dealer in novelties in Ann Harbor admits that he has sold more Ouia boards since college opened this fall than he has sold in all his 25 years experience in business before.

Some of the co-eds consult Ouija on matters trifling and serious with equal freedom. Sometimes there are humorous results.

A certain co-ed consulted the board

A certain co-ed consulted the board to see if she was going to the "J. hop." It said she was, and mentioned the name of the man who was going to take her. The man had paid her some attention and she had faith in some attention and she had faith its outs.

The girl was on an allowance. If she was going to the hop she would have to have some new clothes, and have to have some new clothes, and if she bought new raiment she could not afford to go home Christmas. So the little woman spent a lonesome Yule neesen here, and when vacation was ended the man who Oulja promised and brought a bride with him.

However, not, all the students who play around the Oulja are going to take the messages seriously. The far greater number wouldn't believe Oulja's scribblings on a bet.

LIVES OF 30,000 ELK SAVED BY

had a narrow escape from extermination.

Last year the fall and early winter weather was unusually mild, though the first snows made it difficult for them to dig their way through to pasturage. This year, following an unprecedentedly dry summer season, there was little forage, and to make things worse an early and severe winter began in October, bringing the herisdown from the mountains to the winter elk refuge at Jackson two months earlier than usual.

It quickly became apparent that the $50 tons of hay on hand for winter feeding would prove inadequate and that out of the herd numbering nearly 18,000, from 8,000 to 10,000 would be facing starvation by midwinter. The state of Wyoming provided 400 tons and agents of the bloogical survey reported the emergency to Washington with the result that the secretary of agriculture authorized the survey to increase its general appropriation by $45,000 from the department's emergency fund to purchase additional supplies of hay.

From this fund 573 tons have been ency fund to purchase additional supplies of hay.

From this fund 573 tons have been purchased, according to E. W. Nelson, chief of the biological survey, and two balling machines and 30 teams are now engaged in putting it up and transporting it to the refuge. Heavy losses, Mr. Nelson explained, will occur in the herds scattered through the foothills, but these cannot be avoided. The majority of the Southern herds reach the refuge and for these adequate provision will be made.

The same precarious conditions confronted the sik of the Northern herd in the ranges north of Yellowstone park, cared for by the National Park service.

the ranges north of Vellowstone park, cared for by the National Park service, which this year appropriated $30,000 of their funds and purchased 1,000 tons of hay in the neighborhood of Gardner, Montana, and are ready to purchase whatever supplies may be necessary.

Over 4,000 elk of the Northern herd were killed during the hunting season, leaving about 16000. Hunting is not so general in the ranges which are the home of the Southern herd, and its

Broken Locomotive, In Wild Journey, Scatters Big Crowd

SALEM, Mass. Feb. 6—A runaway locomotive its front and battered into a tangle of scrap iron and spouting clouds of excaping steam from a acore of broken pipes, roared through the station and tunnel at Salem just as the passengers were gathering for the Hoston bound a bad wreck through the north shore towns.

The wild engine, pushing three empty day coaches, fore through the station at a 50-mile clip, and the waiting crowd stattered in all directions.

Shortly before the engine had been engaged in shifting cars on the Marbiehead main line and had collided with a string of 16 cars. The crash reduced the front of the locomotive to scrap and threw the engineer. E. C. Allen, of Rockport, and Pireman Harold Crockett, of Somerville, from the cab. Both men Rockport, and Fireman Harold Crockett, of Somerville, from the cab. Both men were badly scalded by the bursting steam pipes. In attempting to avoid the crash with the standing cars Engineer Allen had thrown the lever into Feverse. When the forward momentum of cars was lost in the crash the rearward revolutions of the driving wheels pulled it chear of the wreckage and started it on its wild run. As the cars gained speed the train crew. H. L. Goodhue, conductor, and Charles Keen, brakeman, jumped, both men being badly shaken up from their falls in the dark.

When the crash occurred Yardmaster areas of the crash occurred Yardmaster.
